THE STATE LEAGUE.
Norfolk took the first game of the series from Hampton by the close score of 3 to 1 yesterday afternoon. Flanagan was in the form, allowing only five hits. The home team was a little crippled up, nevertheless they put up a good game in the field and at the bat. Martin was touched up a little lively at times, but good fielding kept the hits down. Armstrong, his finger split in the sixth inning by a foul tip, which delayed the game for a while. After applying cold water and a bandage to the injured member he pluckily finished the game.

The game will be called this afternoon at 5 o'clock, and as the boys from the Soldiers' Home play a good, snappy game a large crowd is expected.

ROUGH RIDERS.

Origin of This Famous Branch of Our Military Service.

The Germ of the Rough Rider Found in General Stuart's Famous Confederate Cavalry—Call Issued for Five Hundred Men for the National Rough Rider Military Encampment.

On April 28th, 1893, the Secretary of War authorized the recruiting of three regiments of cavalry, to be composed of "frontiersmen, who have the special qualifications of horsemen and marksmen." One by Captain—now General Leonard Wood (succeeded by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt); another by Colonel J. L. Torrey, the originator of the rough-rider idea, and the third by Colonel Melvin Grigsby.

POPULAR WITH THE PEOPLE.
The rough-rider idea was remarkable in at least two respects—the applause it received from the people and the sturdy character of the men who composed the three regiments. Since their return many of them have been nominated for office, but it is not yet recorded that a single one has been defeated by the votes of the plain people.

Senator Warren, of Wyoming, took charge of the legislation which made possible the organization of the roughriders. The rough-rider idea, the Senator says, was laid before him by Colonel Torrey, one of the most prominent and best known stock men in his part of the country, who had had a large experience with frontiersmen. At Colonel Torrey's request they went to the President, the Secretary of War, and the general commanding the army, early in March, and told them of the Western men who were fine horsemen and good marksmen, but who in the ordinary course would not be given an opportunity for service under the proposed law. In view of the encouragement given by President McKinley, Secretary Alger, and General Miles, Senator Warren introduced a bill in the Senate providing for the organization of such a force. The Volunteer Army Bill reached the Senate before the rough-rider bill was passed, and Senator Warren procured an amendment to it under which the three regiments were subsequently organized.

RESULT OF LATE WAR.

The National Rough-Rider Military Encampment is the outgrowth of a war crystallized by the late war with Spain and is an institution made useful, if not necessary, by the great changes in military tactics which the last ten years have wrought. At the time of the breaking out of the Civil War, Rough-Riding was unknown in any of the armies of the world. In every army there were bodies of Cavalry, and they were, as a rule, unyielding and immobile forces, and maintained in man cases more as an ornament than for use. They were, of course, at times useful, when it was desired to hurl a great force in mass at the enemy, but the brunt of fighting was done by the infantry, which was considered the force of war, and that consequently to which the greater attention in development should be paid.

GENERAL STUART'S CALVARY.

It was the Confederate Calvary which first showed to military men and to the world generally, that in the Rough-Riding reposed a force in which there were immense possibilities of development. The awakening came one morning when General Stuart with a small body of Rough-Riders swooped down upon the Union Army, 100,000 strong, encamped in front of Richmond, broke down the Federal outpost, drove its reserves, a squad of cavalry, into camp, and after inflicting much damage upon the Union Camp, left it demoralized and rubbing its eyes in astonishment and chagrin, and having piled their haversacks with government rations, were out of reach before pursuit could be made.

The Rough-Riders of the National Rough-Rider Military Encampment are Gov. Charles C. Thomas, Gen. E. V. Sumner, U. S. Army, Gen. George H. Hale, U. S. Volunteer, Col. S. K. Hooper, D. H. Moffat and Col. D. G. Kelly. As the Encampment is a permanent one, eligible young men may enlist at any time for periods of three, six, nine months or one year.

CALL FOR FIVE HUNDRED MEN.

At the last meeting of the Board of Governors, the Secretary was ordered to issue a call for 500 men, preferably college men, athletes or men familiar with the use of the revolver and rifle. Ten medical students will also be accepted, who will be attached to the mounted Red Cross training station. The call also includes 50 graduated civil engineering students who will receive practical training in everything pertaining to field operations, bridge and field construction, etc.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The course of the school includes rough-riding, sharpshooting and military tactics; training of the horse; target practice with rifle and revolver; fencing, mounted and dismounted; military gymnastics; practice for the trooper, troop and squadron; practical instruction in crossing streams; Farrow's land-taught system of swimming; practical and theoretical instruction in military signaling; laying out temporary field shelter; practical instruction in military reconnaissance on foot and mounted; practical instruction in field telegraphy; night signaling and the use of the heliograph; instruction in wireless telegraphy; practical instruction in ordnance; practical instruction in the protection and care of the wounded on the battlefield; special attention to cavalry drill and regulations, and rough-riding tactics, including transportation and packing; practical instruction in scouting; with such other instructions as may be inaugurated from time to time.

THE DRILLS TAUGHT.

In the matter of tentage and equipment we will seek to exhibit many improvements over what is officially endorsed and used at this time. If our War Department will open its eyes, it may see some of its mistakes. Our drills will tend to individual marksmanship and open order firing. Particular stress will be laid on the uselessness of bayonet charges. The men and their horses will be trained together. Jumping and mountain climbing play most important roles. The School of the Trooper will be followed by charges and putting the horses over hurdles, fences, hedges,

Ferry Bridges Must Be Put in Repair at Once—Shooting Affair Between Two Colored Men—Captain John Rice, Nearly, was Shot in the Foot.

The town council met last night in its regular fortnightly session, with the president, Captain M. C. Keeting, and the following members present: Messrs. Williams, Baile, Whetstone, Martin, Robertson and Jacobs.

NO MERCHANTS' SUNDAY.

An ordinance prohibiting the sale of merchandise, soda water, etc., etc., on Sunday was read, and laid on the table until the next meeting. This ordinance affects drug stores, which will if it goes into effect, be allowed to sell drugs only.

The recorder reported that he had purchased an additional horse for the fire department as per instructions.

BAD FERRY BRIDGES.

The recorder was instructed to notify the ferry lessees that the two bridges must be put in repair at once; also the electric street car company that the portion of the Chesnut street bridge occupied by them must likewise be repaired.

SKOT THE WRONG MAN.

Sunday afternoon, between 5 and 6 o'clock, Silvester Swain and Frank Winston, both colored, met at the corner of Liberty and Eleventh streets. Swain drew a revolver, saying to Winston: "You have treated me wrong," and fired five times in rapid succession. One of the shots took effect in the left foot of Captain Joe Hile, foreman at the

IN PARIS.

(Special Cor. of Virginian-Pilot.)
Paris, May 30.—Paris and Chicago both claim to be the most cosmopolitan city in the world. It would be difficult to decide upon the merits of their respective claims, but this summer, at least, when Paris is the objective point of thousands of visitors, the French capital will undoubtedly be awarded the palm.

He who does not like Paris must indeed be hard to please, as the city's varied resources offer attractions to every class of people. The man of wealth, with his coach and pair, besides himself to the magnificent parks and boulevards. The society woman, with her retinue, the car is in its glory, as there are apparently no laws to keep them from practicing their profession. The pickpocket and bunco man reap a harvest from unsuspecting visitors. The teacher naturally finds much to condemn, but also a great field for his labors. The student is interested in the many excellent educational institutions, and many other things. The man of letters, the collector, antiquarian, etc., all find much to please their respective tastes.

Lastly, but in perhaps the greatest number, the majority of the city's young charges find a veritable earthly paradise in the numerous public parks and squares.

ALL RACES HERE.

One sees Chinese mandarin, Japs, Turks, Arabs, negroes and many others from all quarters of the globe, whose nationality he cannot determine. The other day, at the top of the Eiffel Tower, I heard two sentences complaining of the cold at such a great elevation. Addressing myself to one, I said: "It is a pity we cannot store up some of this for July and August." He replied: "I should want it during December and January, for I live in Australia."

The visitor naturally wonders why, with so much time for preparations, Paris is still quite ready to receive her guests. Many of the streets are torn up, in process of repair or the laying of tracks for the rapid transit. At the Exposition, matters are no better and some of the buildings seem as if just begun. This is not, however, altogether the fault of the French. Perhaps half of the foreign buildings are yet closed to the public and that of the United States was not inaugurated until May 12.

UNITED STATES DAY.

On this occasion the Americans in Paris attended "Concerts" and one could easily imagine himself in his own country. Sam's Band furnished the music and most everybody forgot his right-angled triangle to spend the whole afternoon listening to the music. The strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Stars and Stripes Forever," etc. "The March King" is very popular in Paris, as his compositions are of such a nature as to appeal to the impetuous and enthusiastic Frenchman.

The walks in the Exposition are covered with loose gravel, which is quite disagreeable. Some have wondered if this is to make visitors sit down more frequently, for which there is a charge of 2 cents every time. The water-drinking Americans find, but few places where they can secure the best of all thirst quenchers.

LOVE OUR MONEY.

The English and Americans are always the best customers, and it is remarkable how quickly they are distinguished by the vendors of various articles. Nearly all know enough English phrases. In asking directions on the street one is sometimes answered in English. Every large store has one or more clerks who speak our language, and in the busy parts of the Richmond Cedar Works Mill, near Great Bridge. He was sitting in his bureau at the time conversing with some one. Winston and Swain had a row Saturday night and had met Sunday morning and renewed the quarrel. The shooting attracted quite a large crowd in a very few minutes, and the last three shots were fired at Winston as he was passing through the crowd. Fortunately, the shots went high and took effect in a building on the opposite side of the street. Swain was arrested by Officer Humphries and lodged at the station-house. He was given a hearing yesterday morning before Mayor McCoy and sent on to the grand jury.

FRANK, FOUGHT AND FIRED.

Saturday Marion Baker, colored, who resides on Totten's town road, in the county, took too much rum, and thinking he was a good man went home and undertook to demonstrate his fighting qualities on his wife. He scored a knockout, and was following up his advantage vigorously when James Smith, also colored, came on the scene and interfered. Baker drew his pistol and fired at Smith several times, but the shots taking effect. Baker was arrested by Constable C. A. McPherson, of the county, and lodged at the station-house. He will be given a hearing before Justice Tillotson, of the county, this morning at 9 o'clock.

POLICE COURT ITEMS.

Wm. Butts, colored, was in the police court yesterday morning for assaulting his wife. He was fined $10 and costs, and in default of payment was committed for six days.

Louie Etheredge, for lewdness, was fined $5 and costs, and three months in the county jail.

AT THE CHURCHES.

Rev. J. J. Taylor, D. D., of Freemason Street Baptist Church, Norfolk, addressed the Missionary Society at the Berkley Avenue Baptist Church Sunday afternoon. A musical program of songs was rendered. The attendance was large, and the services seemed to be enjoyed.

The funeral services of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben McElroy took place at the residence on Chesapeake avenue Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. S. S. Robinson, pastor of the South Norfolk Baptist Church, officiated. The remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground in the county. The children's day at the South Norfolk Baptist Church Sunday morning
